Introducing Tracy Ferrier, our UK ENIC Interim Managing Director

We are pleased to introduce Tracy Ferrier, who joined us this month as UK ENIC Interim Managing Director.

Tracy previously oversaw the delivery of the Skills for Prosperity programme in nine countries, on behalf of the Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office (FCDO). She has a wealth of relevant experience spanning international education, qualifications and standards, including a decade at the British Council as the Global Head of Skills.

'I am delighted to take up the challenge of leading UK ENIC, with the aim of further strengthening the excellent services we provide, and lifting the ways in which we serve our members to even greater heights,' she said. READ MORE

Romania study visit gives TVET and teacher education insights

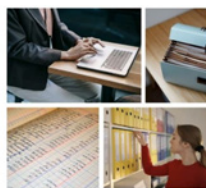

Members of our research team spent a week in Bucharest, Romania, meeting a range of stakeholders across the country's education sector.

Reflecting recent trends seen in individual applications, discussions focused on gathering information from the authorities responsible for technical and vocational training, as well as teacher education.

Jack Gunnell, UK ENIC Research Manager, and Samantha Broadbent, Senior International Education Analyst, took part in a series of meetings during the visit, which was organised by Gianina Chirazi, Director, National Centre for Recognition and Equivalence of Diplomas (CNRED) at Romania's NARIC.

They met representatives of the Ministry of Labour's Department for Lifelong Learning, which regulates many of the complex technical and vocational qualifications UK ENIC receives from applicants. READ MORE
